

About Us

Managers and team members are always looking at ways to get things done in a short amount of time. Raley Notifications and IntakeForms add-ons deliver custom solutions to help increase a team's productivity and improve communications.

The Team

Inversion Point (the company behind Raley apps) co-founders, Aleksandr Medved and Vladimir Horev, bring a combined value of 30-years of commercial software and more than ten years of Atlassian product experience to this private-boutique workshop based in Tallinn, Estonia.

Specializing in resolving specific JIRA and ServiceDesk problems, Inversion Point is committed to delivering innovative solutions for Atlassian-based software to their customers. This commitment has lead to supporting and helping customers excel and be more productive in their workflow processes.

The Solution

Raley add-ons are completely customer driven. By focusing on their customers' needs, the team at Inversion Point can develop and implement new features in Raley add-ons in days, not months. If an issue occurs, we are able to work fast and respond quickly so the customer never feels alone in managing an issue.

The Raley Notifications add-on has been helping teams focus on what's important, resolving concerns about the way JIRA distributes information to team members, customers and suppliers. Our Notifications solution provides a way to eliminate irrelevant notifications and customize the workflow to fit your business goals.

The Raley IntakeForms for JIRA is our flagship add-on which works very nicely with other plugins from Raley family. This add-on enables you to design your very own, tailor made, dynamic forms to collect information from your customers and partners and store it in Atlassian JIRA. Forms can be embedded anywhere, on a website, in Atlassian Confluence or using the API.
